

ATLANTA BUSINESS CHRONICLE

April 23-29, 2010

MORE BURGER. Yeah! Burger, a new burger restaurant from chef Shaun Doty set to open in mid-May in Midtown West, is already working on a second location.

Erik Maier, partner in Yeah! Burger LLC, confirmed he and Doty have signed a lease for a space at the corner of Virginia and North Highland avenues.

The 1017 North Highland Ave. site, currently the site of a car wash, is expected to open in late fourth quarter, Maier said.

Right now, the pair are concentrating on the first restaurant, in White Provisions in Midtown West, he said, but the Virginia-Highland spot was one the men could not pass up.

Yeah! Burger in Midtown West will occupy 2,400 square feet and seat 92 patrons, including 36 on the outdoor patio.

"Burgers are the most popular food in America," Maier said of the decision to open a burger concept. Doty and Maier are also partners in Shaun's, an upscale restaurant in Inman Park.

And the pair are thinking of other restaurant concepts as well, Maier said. "I think there are other opportunities out there."

Maier

Yeah! Burger LLC

[editorial]

[The Reynolds Group Inc.] [www.thereynoldsgroupinc.com]