atlanta | may restos.

the grass is greener in the dining scene this month. what to do? time to take your cuisine coastal and say yeah we can to sustainable beef. here are the may eats:

chef shaun doty's much buzzed-about burger concept is at long last opening later this month. yeah! burger will be the city's first organic burger joint, and all the beef will come from a south georgia farm with buns coming from atlanta's own H + F bread co. other menu options include hand-cut fries, and specialty organic milkshakes called "concretes" which will be extra thick and include cookie crumbles. sure he's joining a trend, but with doty's rep, we're expecting great things. 1168 howell mill road. at 14th. no phone yet. www.yeahburger.com
