Tanner Hill and Astolfi Art To Occupy White Provision Space

White Provision Development Company has negotiated two new leases with Tanner Hill Gallery and Astolfi Art to open project space this fall. White Provision's plan to remodel and reinvigorate Atlanta's old meatpacking district into a mixed-use development space was first spurred on with the introduction of a space for Jackson Fine Art in May. These three galleries will showcase contemporary sculpture, local artisans, and international photography exhibits and are part of a grander plan to incorporate boutiques, office space, restaurants, and residences into the area.
